Advanced Technology Video (ATV) Announces the WINNER of the Kawasaki Bruce Force ATV

Coppell, TX – August 23, 2012 – Advanced Technology Video (ATV) a leading provider of innovative video security surveillance solutions located in Coppell, Texas (Dallas, Texas) announces the award of its 1Q 2012 promotion -- a Kawasaki Bruce Force 300 All Terrain Vehicle (ATV) to Richard Jones from Audio-Video Corporation located in Amarillo, Texas.

The Kawasaki Bruce Force 300 contest was introduced during the 2012 ISC Trade Exhibition in Las Vegas, NV held on March 28-30 and has subsequently been a major focus in ATV's marketing and product promotion emphasis throughout 1Q-2Q 2012. The promotion ended June 30th and the winner was randomly selected during ATV's National Sales Meeting held in the first week of July 2012. Mr. Jones who visited and received a qualified product demonstration at the ATV booth during the ISC show was immediately contacted by phone and informed as the winner. The ATV was awarded to Mr. Jones by Bob DeProspero, ATV's Director of Sales and Chris Martinez, ATV's SW Regional Sales Manager during an award ceremony scheduled on August 15, 2012 in Amarillo, Texas.

Audio-Video Corp is a force in the Texas Panhandle covering the Healthcare, Education, Commercial, Industrial and Government markets. Audio-Video Corporation was founded in 1946. In 2012, the company changed its name to A-V Corp and with the name change, this more than sixty year old company, made yet another major change in its history to maintain its position as the preeminent low-voltage systems integrator in the Texas Panhandle.

Today, A-V Corp and its security division – The Security Company, licensed by the State of Texas, services over 2,500 security, video surveillance, access control, firm alarm and sound accounts. The company also provides monitoring of fire alarm, security; video surveillance and other systems through its UL listed monitoring station.

The Kawasaki Bruce Force 300 was purchased from another Amarillo business - David Brown's Sports Center – the Amarillo Texas Kawasaki ATV Dealer. Joe Maloney, David Brown's General Manager has been instrumental in assisting Advanced Technology Video in the purchase, set up, and delivery of the unit and has been a tremendous partner for Advanced Technology Video during the award process.
